OBJECT TO SEAMENS' UNION DEMANDS ON POOR LABOR GROUND

Officials Says Old Agreement English Painter, Long Famous, Anonymous Letter Tells Police Expires in American Hospital Meant Incompetence—Sailor Secretary Sees War.

The reason we object to the union,," said Raymond to an Evening World reporter to-day, "In because it compels under the old agreement to accept incompetent labor. We have to take the first men they second. We have to carry too many thousands of dollars worth of cargo and be responsible for many lives to be able to afford this risk. Even the union officials themselves admit they haven't given us proper service. As far as their protest against the condition of their sleeping quarters on our ships, and the food we erve them, I am willing at any time to take a member of this City's Board of Health to pass upon it. I will take any Evening World reporter down to inspect

Mr. Raymond was told that a repreentative of another steamship company had suggested that perhaps the chief obection to the union was because most of its members were foreigners.

'I don't think it would do to say that No, our chief protest is against the incompetent men the union has been ding us and we have been compelled tary of the sailors' union, received word that the steamship men had decided not to renew their agreement. that the steamship men had decided not to renew their agreements he said that the action of the Clyde Company would cause a guerilla warfare.

This agreement, which was forced arbitrarily upon these companies because of their unpreparedness to meet a strike, expires the end of this week A brief letter was sent to all the companies by the union, officially notifying them of the old agreement's end and asking that it be renewed, with certain amendments. The new requests made by the union are for better sleeping quarters for the crews on board ship, and a better preparation of their food. The conditions at present are unbearable, said George C. Bodine, the secretary of the union, to-day, and the men are absolutely determined that they be improved. The steamship companies pointedly deny to-day the union's statements and show a determined opposition to the renewal of any agreement with the sailors.

"The reason we object to the union."

Several weeks ago an anonymous letter was received at Police Headquarters begging the police to start an investigation and giving them information which to-day resulted in the arrest of Wolf and the detention of Winder. After several hours of questioning Coroner Winterbottom gleaned from Winder the fact that the Wolfes had a vo-lent quarrel a short time before the wife was found burned. After telling this much, Winder decided to tell some more. Wolfe, he said, had deliberately thrown the lighted lamp at his wife. Her dress caught fire and Wolfe rushed from the room refusing to help her. Winterbottom after hearing the step-brother's story, decided to hold Wolfe to sweat another Coroner's inquest.

O'Brien sent the woman to the Herbert street station, where she sank exhausted into a chair. The reserves sent for a meal, which she ate ravenously. She said she was Miss Anna Werschof, thirty-five years old, and had been in this country only a few years. She asked to be sent to the almshouse.

Before sending her to Manhattan Avenue Court the matron searched her. In one stocking was found a bank book showing she had 31,400 on deposit in the Bowery Savings Bank. Thirty 31 bills were found in the other stocking.

Magistrate Naumer discharged her with a reprimand.
